The basic energy of your chart emphasizes the mental and physical over the spiritual and emotional. Your primary motivations are those affecting the mind and body — communication, thought, physical sensation, gravity — with the effects of the mental on the physical standing above all else for you. Your life has been and will continue to be marked by surprises, dynamism, and growth-oriented ideas. You're a perpetual child with a secure sense of entitlement to anything within your possession, never questioning that the world is yours to shape and mold as you see fit. You're not afraid of the fight, since you know that it brings resolution and harmony. Your neck and throat are both your strength and your weakness. Emeralds and copper speak to you, and pale blue and mauve compliment you.

You explore yourself through what's around you. You develop strong connections with people — spiritual partnerships — through whom you find balance and reward... when your relationships with them are made manifest in a disciplined manner. You're often disappointed and experience a fair (or what may seem unfair) amount of controversy. When who you are no longer serves you, you simply reinvent yourself, and you always know exactly when you should do that. Your mind is constantly active, and you see no difference between dreams and truth.

The face you show is the way you nurture, by which I mean that while you come across as cool and mellow once someone gets to know you they realize you're constantly crackling with energy, but when you're caring for someone your wisdom and devotion flow freely and soothingly. You love idealistically, and believe wholeheartedly that the potential you see in your loved ones can be brought to fruition if they can accept your understanding and pragmatic encouragement.

You find opportunities for reinvention of the way you're perceived through your illusions and the hidden things that motivate you, readily leaving behind your past and that which you've brought into the world. You're comfortable with the recreation of your appearance, and lucky in the way it comes together. People around you see growth when you apply yourself to healthful deprivations, such as fasting or abstinence from a favored activity, but are often rubbed the wrong way when you express quixotic opinions about the way the home should be run. It's through these opinions though that you find fortunate, if challenging, opportunities to set aside the things you misperceive and transform yourself.

Your home is your castle, and for you, more than most, home really is where the heart is. When there's a physical structure involved, it will show very clearly who you are in it's décor. Mostly though, home is with whomever you love. You find this to be an obstacle in terms of your reputation and are often forced to justify your transience, but luck tends to follow you as you move from place to place, perhaps because those justifications always make perfect sense to you and it's hard to argue with someone who has no question about what they're doing. However, your greater good fortune will remain elusive until you can find a balance between your nomadic nature and your need for a home base, which will be found with those few who understand that your empathy and ability to ease the suffering of others arise out of pain you carry. That pain is what guides you in knowing when to give things up, and informs your intuition in ways that will lead you to the career and reputation you desire.

Money for you, and possessions, are important only in what they allow you to convey to others. External pressure to find financial stability often causes you tension and anxiety. You use things and money thoughtfully, but prefer not to dwell on their presence or absence in your life.

Your style of communication is loving and wise, but too often the act of trying to communicate leads to feelings of depression and defeat. Avoid exhaustion and frustration by limiting your efforts to those things that will have an effect on your legacy, those people who attract and fulfill you, and those issues that pertain to the hopes, dreams, and wishes of your friends and the wider world.

You will always bring teenaged energy to your home and family, even when you're the eldest member thereof. It's through this eternally revolutionary, growth- and discovery-oriented mindset that you'll find the constant renewal you need, and where your status will be increased. Your thoughtful decision-making and sense of ceremony lead you to take action where your family is concerned, and while others may question your choices you're always prepared to stand behind them except where you've willfully disregarded your intuition in making them. Doing so holds you back and leaves you blocked in gaining what the experience was meant to offer until whatever price the universe sees fit to exact has been paid.

Your creative and sexual energies require regular reformation. Your incurable pain revolves around the inner conflict you're constantly analyzing regarding these aspects of your life, but it's also what creates the compassion through which you're able to help others heal, which in turn opens the door for advancement in your career and inner health. Unconventional approaches to the home and it's workings will serve both you and the world at large. A physically active approach in these areas brings growth within your family even though it will often cause you personal agitation.

Temperance is called for in being of service to others, and a lack thereof will be reflected in your physical being. When it comes to cooperation, you're at your best when dealing in philosophy, higher learning, and broad concepts. Fortunately, your emotional stability makes you gifted at successfully blending principles and making them concrete in healthy ways.

Your partnerships in life will revolve around your career. Even a marriage, should you choose to enter into one (or more), would be about you and related to a balance you require in order to find bountiful prosperity (which is not to say that you won't prosper if you never get married). Public improvement is found for you through associations that serve your own physical well-being and in which you serve others in meaningful ways. Communication within these collaborations is what will serve to minimize the friction that will often come with transforming them, as you'll often find yourself having to do in order to maintain the integrity of your product, brand, or whatever the legacy of your mutual effort is meant to be. The most challenging part for you will be maintaining a disciplined approach and giving up what you desire in order to realize the rewards of applying your energies with a mind to the greater good.

Losses in your life, especially the loss of loved ones whether through death or severed relationships, will bring unexpected opportunities. Potential will be magnified by your spiritual inheritances from these separations, and your activity level will rise. The legacy you leave behind will arise from distributing to others what you gain through partnerships and the ending thereof.

You were born with an innate awareness of social philosophies, which you're constantly expanding through travel and mental exploration. The destruction of community concepts is, for you, only the logical first step in the creation of new ones, and you're more than willing to initiate that process when the opportunity presents itself. That willingness, while admirable, can be detrimental to you personally if not engaged with restraint. Should you choose to be involved in politics, at which you would excel, you would bring revolutionary concepts to the table and have an unusually high success rate at bringing them to realization, as long as you cover all your bases and work in an honest and aboveboard way.

Your hope is to contribute through your work in a way that makes the world a better place without losing who you are, and opportunities to do so will come through practice, self-mastery, and higher learning. You are your own biggest obstacle in this process, except when you let intuition guide you in finding creative ways to grow through your own suffering. Your support of innovative approaches to social dreams, especially those involving technology, allows you to accomplish the expansion of both public knowledge and your own experience.

Friendships, for you, must be safe in order for you to continue to choose to invest in them, but those friends who qualify are no less than family to you and your ideals run toward helping them to realize their hopes and dreams. Your approach to doing so, however, is anything but dreamy, being rooted instead entirely in that which is concrete and proven to work. You'll put great effort into seeing them succeed, but you won't be wasteful in the process. You understand that your part in their success also contributes to your own, although this isn't your motive for supporting them; rather, you know that you grow by learning from their experiences. Sometimes your nurturance of them creates undue resistance in your own progress, but when it brings results your interdependence is rewarded with greater prosperity.

And finally, we come to that which can cause it all to fall apart, which for you comes down to allowing stagnancy and loose ends to clutter up your mental landscape. This is where the need for discipline that's a theme throughout your chart really comes into play. Taking the time to clear your mind every now and then goes a long way toward making the cumulative results of your daily efforts worthwhile. Acknowledging your part in what's been destroyed, no matter how painful it is to do so, allows you to have a useful hand in rebuilding it. Not doing so will make waves that affect your overall well-being.

In conclusion, you're currently in the midst of dealing with intense emotional events on the physical and personal levels. Let your dreams guide you in understanding what you need to learn here, and submit to your philosophical beliefs in order to make manifest the great good fortune trying to find it's way to you through these circumstances. Love wisely, and don't be afraid to be devoted to your ideals above all else.
